

Octathalon Membership

Terms & Conditions

One main feature of this website is to provide sustained motivation in many ways to those people looking to achieve their goals through exercise. The grading system is just one of those ways where people can learn and find out more from the site. As members go up the grades they find out more and more things that are enjoyable and that can be useful to them. With a view to understanding that other members are on this journey, we would ask you to agree to keeping confidential any information you come across on this website. Practically this request is to ask you not to reveal information you learn from the higher grades to those people who are still on a lower grade. This includes asking you not to write about this information on the forums or in any of your online discussions. If Personal Trainers wish to discuss this information with their customers in their face to face sessions, we ask that you do so with discretion so as to not spoil the enjoyment nor mar the motivation that others are finding within this site.

This site has also been set up to create a new sport. The success of this sport will benefit all members as with this success will come greater financial support that can be channelled into greater participant recognition by way of prizes and Octathalete sponsorship. In order to achieve this success, and in recognition that the development of this sport so far has required considerable investment, we would ask that you just keep your comments on this site to ones that focus on solely the Octathalon and training for the Octathalon and not to use the site to discuss other gym based group activities. You are however allowed to discuss how Octathalon training can help with other far more established and internationally accepted sports like Rowing, Athletics & Football. Once the Octathalon has become an internationally recognised & established sport in its own right, we are more than happy to lift this restriction, but until then we reserve the right to cancel any member's membership without financial recompense, with immediate notice should they ignore this request. We will regularly monitor information put on this site to enforce this request.

In doing any run through of the Octathalon courses, Octathalon Ltd, nor any of its affiliated associations & organisations, does not accept any responsibility for anybody's actions and any results or consequences arising from those actions. Ltd website and you agree to allowing this information to be given out to representatives of Octathalon Ltd in order to proceed with the running of future events.

You also agree to be emailed, from time to time, about events, news and training tips by Octathalon Ltd. You also agree to not bringing the Octathalon sport into disrepute by saying anything that might be deemed as discourteous to the company and any sponsor who is working with the Association. You also will not hold the company responsible for any such actions that might occur in these instances. You agree to also recognise the rights of the organisers of Octathalon events to insist that any or all competitors must wear any clothing provided by the sponsors, like sports vests, during an event and in all communications with any of the media relating to that event on that day and that any unwillingness to conform to these requirements may mean that you can be disqualified from an event. If you get selected to compete in Regional, National and/or International Octathalon events you fully agree to be interviewed by all forms of media at, before, during and after these events as is deemed fit by the media companies and the above Octathalon Ltd company and its representatives wishes at the time.
